Courthouse renovation in temporary 'gridlock'

Officials disagree about contamination

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER Staff Writer

Construction at the Hancock County Courthouse in downtown Bay St. Louis is in a gridlock for the moment, said Chancery Clerk Tim Kellar on Tuesday, because of conflicting stories on the condition of soil located underneath the 90-yearold building.

Supervisors were presented with a report from toxicologist for the Center of Environmental Health Allan C. Nye earlier this month. Compton Engineering, which is supplying architectural services at the site, brought Nye in to test soil and air under the building last month.

Nye confirmed his preliminary reports that the levels of Chlordane found under the

Lott, WorldCom, special session top 2002 Mississippi news events

BY JACK ELLIOTT JR. Associated Press Writer JACKSON, Miss. (AP)

In the days after the November elections, Trent Lott was flying high and Mississippi with him.

Lott was to become majority leader in a Republican-controlled Senate and Mississippi would reap benefits from two powerful senators.

A few weeks and one thoughtless remark later, Lott had toppled from power. Lott's downward spiral captured news programs and headlines nationwide and, at times, reopened old racial wounds in a state struggling to shed its past. It also was the top story in Mississippi in 2002.

Lott claimed he was kidding an old politician _ it was the 100th birthday celebration of Strom Thurmond, when he said the country would be better off if Thurmond had been elected president in 1948. Thurmond ran on a segregationist platform.

In the protests that followed his Dec. 5 remarks, Lott apologized, claimed he was misunderstood and vowed to be more sensitive to minorities.

By the weekend before Christmas, the protests had not diminished, the White House was distancing itself and fellow GOP senators were doing the same. On Dec. 20, Lott issued a statements saying he was relinquishing his leadership position but would remain in the Senate.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Lott said he walked into a "trap" set by his political enemies and had "only myself to blame."

`I don't think there's any use in trying to say I'm disappointed in anybody or anything. An inappropriate remark brought this down on my head.

`A lot of people in Washington have been trying to nail me for a long time. When you're from Mississippi and you're a conservative and you're a Christian, there are a lot of people that don't like that. I fell into their trap and so I have only myself to blame," Lott said.

Despite it all, Lott remains a popular political figure in Mississippi.

Blame of another sort came with WorldCom's announcement that it had lied about it earnings and was in the red by $9 billion. WorldCom, tops among a year filled with corporate scandals, filed the largest bankruptcy in U.S. history after confessing to improper accounting procedures.

Heads rolled. And chief among them was Bernie Ebbers, one of the company's founders and cheerleader of its take-no-prisoners aggressive business attitude.

The former CEO had borrowed $408 million from the telecommunications company. Ebbers had pledged company shares as collateral, but with those shares, once valued at $286 million, now worthless, he was said to be considering forgoing his $1.5 million annual pension to help settle the debt.

The wave of corporate scandals turned the average

Happy 2003 to you from me

Here is hoping that 2003 brings health, prosperity and happiness to each and every one of you. Since 9-11 things have really changed in the Little's conversion, which some of his state Senate colleagues say won't happen, had been thought a given because of his closeness to Tuck. However, as one fellow Senator observed: "It wouldn't really make much difference if he puts an 'R' or a 'D' behind his name, because on his watch the Senate already has been pretty much a pro-GOP body anyway.'

On the House side, allbut-certain is the switch of Democratic state Rep. Jim Barnett of Brookhaven, who has been in the Democratic doghouse for a couple of years over the brouhaha when he backed his fellow townsman, Republican Mike Parker, rather than Democrat Ronnie Musgrove in the 1999 governor's race.

Among other possible House switchers is Rep.

Frierson Poplarville, whose South base has Mississippi become so Republican that other local several Democratic officials have already gone over to the Veteran Carroll County Rep. Mary Ann Stevens, for years one of the most conservative members of the House, and long considered a possible switcher could easily change her party label from Democrat to Republican. Observers sav she could be re-elected with either party designation. State GOP chairman Jim Herring, who had a lot to do with orchestrating the Tuck conversion, has been busy lining up strong Republican legislative candidates all around the state.

It's pretty certain, howev-

When House Speaker Tim Ford announced two weeks ago he was stepping down from his post and leaving the Legislature, he observed that there will likely be 40 new faces in the next Mississippi House, either as a the result of already-known vacancies or possible incumbent defeats in 2003 elections.

The newly-drawn legislative map creates a new black-majority House district in the Marshall County Northeast Mississippi. Logically, then it will increase the House Black Caucus membership to 36, making the African-American delegation an even more potent voting bloc in any legislative issue including electing a new Speaker.

There's still virtually no chance that a black lawmaker could garner the 62 votes necessary to be elected Speaker, but if the Black Caucus votes as a bloc, it's sure no white lawmaker could win without Caucus backing. Apparently, the tradition of naming a black to the No.2 spot started 10 years ago with the election of Robert Clark as Speaker pro-tem will be continued, although someone other than Clark will get the post. One sidebar in the 2002 legislative redistricting plan is the elimination of three-county House District 52 in the Delta that Rep. Tom Cameron of Greenville had won in 1999 running as an independent, after earlier being denied his Republican label by the local GOP committee.

Cameron has been an embarrassment to state

Republicans ever since he pushed a bill to legalize the use of caning to punish prisoners, or even school children, and boasted about his measure on national TV.

Even though 2003 is a gubernatorial election year, from the standpoint of the Legislature, the lieutenant governor's race is of primary concern. Legislative Democrats are focusing on getting a strong candidate to run against newly-minted Republican Amy Tuck.

As lawmakers know, in Mississippi's system, the lieutenant governor is more powerful than the governor, because the occupant of the No. 2 spot appoints members of Senate committees, the chairman and vicechairman thereof.

Folks who have probably never been inside the Capitol sometimes storm into legislative corridors and become confused and amazed at the inertia in the Legislature, and even more amazed over how things got that way in the first place.

Perhaps they can see why so few genuine legislative milestones such as the Education Reform Act of 1982, or the Minimum Foundation school program of 1953-54 come out the Mississippi Legislature.

building were minimal and did not exist in amounts any greater than could be found in any pre 1970 structure. Nye's report said that levels of Chlordane found under the courthouse were within the accepted limits of the Occupational Safety and Administration Health (OSHA) guidelines, Kellar

OSHA guidelines dictate a maximum of 0.5 milligrams of Chlordane per cubic meter in a work place for an eight hour work day and a 40 hour work week. OSHA further recommends that workers avoid any skin may heighten exposure.

Nye's recommendations were that workers would have adequate protection by wearing a dust mask and protective clothing while working under the structure.

G M & R ButConstruction, contractors for the renovation, apparently hired their own expert and officials for the company say that the tests done show harmful levels of Chlordane, said Kellar, G M & R wants the county to go through a costly procedure of removing much of the soil located under the building to remove the pesticide,

Kellar said. "We don't want to send anyone into harm's way," said Henry Martinez, owner of G M & R. "We are not experts on the subject and have to rely on the advice of consultants, just like the county. We have completely conflicting reports on the problem, but we hope to get together with everyone involved after the holidays and find out why, and hopefully work out a solution.'

"All of us are professionals and are after the same results I am sure, and that is safety." G M & R officials say that to allow their employees to work under the building would go against their experts professional evaluations of the danger located there, Kellar said.

"We don't really know where we are going from here," Kellar said.

Work under the building has been on hold for months because traces of a deadly pesticide, Chlordane were found in the crawl space under the building. Workers must be able to get under the building to work or eye contact with the con- "on electrical and plumbing taminated substance as this repairs and to complete some structural repairs needed before the work can progress. The elevator slated to be added during renovations will also be put on hold, Kellar said, because the work must begin beneath ground level.

The problem was discovered when some plumbers working for G M & R became ill and reported the incident to OSHA. OSHA's Jackson area director Clyde Payne said that the problems were caused by a large concentration of Chlordane in the work area.

Chlordane was in common use as a pesticide from 1948 to 1988. In 1983 the chemical was banned for all uses except for termite control. In 1988 the EPA banned all uses of the chemical. Chlordane affects the nervous system, the digestive system, and the liver. It can cause headaches, irritability, confusion, weakness, vision problems, vomiting, stomach cramps, diarrhea, and jaundice if breathed in high concentrations or accidentally swallowed in small amounts. Greater exposure can cause convulsions and death.

A look at notable deaths in Mississippi

By JACK ELLIOTT JR. Associated Press Writer

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) _ Stephen E. Ambrose, who started out as a little known history professor and became a sought after lecturer on the Civil War and World War II, died of lung cancer in October.

Ambrose, 66, died at a Bay St. Louis hospital.

The Wisconsin native taught at the University of New Orleans for 24 years and wrote books about former Presidents Eisenhower Nixon. and Transcontinental Railroad and the Lewis and Clark expedition of the American West. He became well known in 1994 when he published D-Day June 6, 1944: The Climactic Battle of World War II." The book used interviews with veterans to recount the bloody invasion of Normandy.

A wake for the historian was attended by about 50 relatives and friends. including actor Tom Hanks Steven director Spielberg, who worked with Ambrose on movie and television productions.

"His great gift was that he refused to allow people to think history was boring,' said Douglas Brinkley, who followed Ambrose as director of UNO's Eisenhower Center. "He was always grabbing people by their lapels and saying Listen to this. Isn't this fascinating?"

His last book, Personal America: Reflections of an Historian," was published in November. He called it his love song to his country. He began writing it after he was diagnosed with cancer in April.

A history maker of another sort from Mississippi's violent and sordid Civil Rights past died in November.

Former Neshoba County Sheriff Lawrence Andrew Rainey Sr., who was acquitted of conspiracy charges in and retain a welfare conthe 1964 slaying of three civil rights workers, died.at his Meridian home. He was

In the Freedom Summer of 1964, civil rights workers James Earl Chaney, Andrew Goodman and Michael Schwerner were murdered on a rural Neshoba County road and buried in an earthen dam.

No one has been convicted of murder. Seven Ku Klux Klansmen, including chief deputy Cecil Price, were convicted of violating the trio's civil rights. Rainey was found innocent in the 1967 trial.

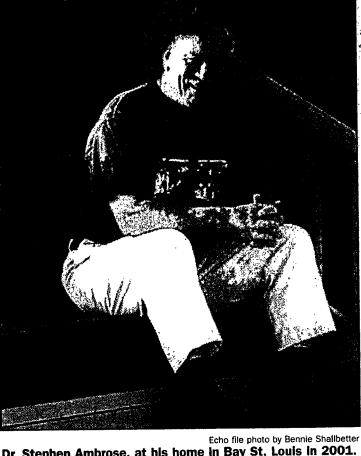

The case inspired the film "Mississippi Burning."

Prosecutors have been trying for more than two years to bring murder charges in the case. Price died in 2001 at a time when he was beginning to cooperate with investigators, said Attorney General Mike Moore. Moore wouldn't say if Rainey was cooperating.

Rainey was sheriff from 1963-67. He worked briefly as a police officer in Philadelphia and as a security guard in Meridian.

A brutal murder of a different sort shocked Jackson and the arts communities of Mississippi.

Lydy Becker Caldwell,

the mother of Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Beth Henley and noted local actress in her own right, was beaten and stabbed to death at her Jackson home years were marred by an in October. She was 74.

A suspect was arrested shortly after Caldwell's body was found at her home. Police said the suspect entered the house looking for money. Police said he killed Caldwell and stole Caldwell was active in theater and the arts in Jackson her entire life. She appeared in numerous stage productions.

In politics: Former state Sen. Bill Burgin Jr. of Columbus, once one of the most powerful men in Mississippi before going to prison for influence peddling, died in October. He was 78. Burgin was convicted in 1978 of using his position as Senate appropriations chairman to help a longtime friend win 10 lawmakers. tract and pocketing some of media: the proceeds. Burgin was convicted of conspiracy in federal court.

That longtime friend and co-defendant, Flavous Lambert Jr. of Raymond, was killed in May when he ran onto an interstate highway in Virginia. He was 71. Lambert had been visiting his son in Alexandria, Va. Lambert served two terms in the state Senate.

C.B. `Buddie' Newman of Valley Park, who served 12 years as speaker of the Mississippi House and 40 years in the Legislature, died from a blood disease in October. He was 81. His tenure as speaker is the third longest in state history. Newman fell into disfavor with lawmakers in 1982 when he gaveled the session to an end as House members were shouting for a vote on creating public school kindergartens. The controversy dogged Newman until the end of his career. He retired in 1988.

Former state Rep. Miriam Quinn Simmons, a staunch Democrat and legislator who backed legislation to protect abused women and children, died in 73. March. She was Simmons served three terms in the House. She was president of the state College Board from 1980-81 when higher education struggled with issues of desegregation. Her later extortion attempt in 1999 when she was kidnapped after being lured to a rural Marion County home by a family seeking her help.

James W. "Bootie" Hunt, a perennial candidate for the U.S. Senate and governor dating back to the 1990s, died at his home in Starkville in July. At the time, he was again running for the U.S. Senate. In 1996, he was the Democratic nominee against Republican Sen. Thad Cochran. Left out of planning by the party for the national convention, Hunt rode a bus to Chicago. Hunt said he wanted a voice in government `for at least one term." In 1999, he said he wanted to be governor to do one thing: reduce the 174-member Legislature to

In business and the Third generation root beer manufacturer William Adolph Barq died in June at his Biloxi home. He was 79. The Barq family's soda was first bottled in 1898 in Biloxi. In 1962, Barq became president of the company until it was bought by New Orleans investors in 1976. The Coca-Cola Co.

bought the firm in 1995. Frances Marion Reid Cashman, an owner and member of the family that founded The Vicksburg Post, died in December at her home in Vicksburg. Cashman was 83 and the widow of Louis P. Cashman Jr., whose grandfather founded the newspaper in Vicksburg in 1883. She was recognized as a "lifelong team member" when her late husband was inducted into the Mississippi Press Association Hall of Fame this year.

Paul G. Moak Sr., a pioneer in the automobile business in Mississippi, died in September at the age of 81. Moak began his six decades in the business after returning to Mississippi after World War II. He was a partner in Lane-Moak Pontiac in Jackson in 1957 and became its sole owner in 1972. He expanded the dealership to sell foreign models, including Volvo and Honda.

John Johnson, the former executive editor of The Clarion-Ledger newspaper in Jackson, died in September. He was 55. He had been a journalism professor at the University of Mississippi since 1998.

David Webb, who with his wife ran two weekly newspapers in southwest Mississippi for nearly 40 years, died in September at the age of 66. Webb and his wife bought the Franklin Advocate in 1962 and the Wilk-Amite Record in 1963. In the arts:

Greenville jazz and blues pianist Abie "Boogaloo" Ames died in February. He was 83. He had lived in the Delta since the 1960s. Ames began playing the piano at age 5. He recorded one of his final performances with jazz singer Cassandra Wilson in August in Clarksdale.

Kenneth Haxton, Greenville writer and cofounder of what is now the Delta Symphony, died in September. He was 82. Haxton composed nearly 200 pieces of music and was a gifted pianist and cellist. Haxton also was involved in the creation of the Levee Press, which published some of the works of Shelby William Foote and

In sports: Reed Green, who coached football and basketball at the University of Southern Mississippi in the 1930s and 40s before taking over as the school's athletics director, died in February at the age of 90. Green was athletics director from 1949-73.

DOT receives national anti-litter awards

During recent ceremonies in Washington, D. Mississippi the Department Transportation (MDOT) received the nation's top Partnership Award for its strong coalition with Keep. Mississippi Beautiful/People Against Litter (KMB/PAL) and a Distinguished Service

Citation for efforts to involve a broad cross section of the community in litter prevention, according to Mississippi Transportation Commission Chairman Wayne Brown.

"Though litter continues to plague our state, MDOT continues to search for innovative, cost-efficient ways in which to keep our highways Brown said. "Studies show that clean communities help instill a sense of pride among citizens, are a factor in reducing crime and present a favorable image to business owners looking Mississippi for a future home."

According to KMB/PAL Executive Director Barbara Dorr, the first-place award honors state departments of transportation who aggressively and diligently support America Keep Beautiful affiliates.

"I had no doubt that MDOT would walk away with the US State DOT Partnership Award," Dorr who nominated MDOT for the award - said. "With the of the leadership Mississippi Transportation Commission (which is comprised of Zack Stewart, northern district; Dick Hall, central district; and Brown. southern district), MDOT is able to administer not only

Mississippi churches fall victim to investment scam

BY SHELLA HARDWELL BYRD Associated Press Writer

The Rev. David Fields knew it was too good to be true: a mere $3,000 investment would yield $500,000 for his tiny Mississippi Delta church.

For Fields and the rest of the 35-member St. Luke Church of God and Christ in Isola, the deal appeared to be heaven sent. It wasn't.

Prosecutors allege it was scam run by northwest Georgia preacher Abraham Kennard, head of the International Network Investment Corp., which took in nearly $9 million in fees from more than 1,000 pastors at mostly black churches in 41 states within a year's time. Fields believes his church was among at least 80 in Mississippi that were duped out of about $250,000.

He said he heard of Network International from another Mississippi minis-

this would have been a whelmed by bad planning wrote the $3,000 check to Network International in July, and now wants to know how he can get the money back.

The Securities and Exchange Commission filed a civil suit on Nov. 4 accusing Kennard, an ex-convict who once served time for armed robbery, of fabricating a story about a charitable fund as well as a tale about using membership fees to build a network of Christian resorts.

No criminal charges have been filed. A federal judge has issued a restraining order freezing Kennard's assets.

"We have found that Kennard took in about $8.7 million," Larry Parrish, enforcement staff attorney with the SEC, said "We have Wednesday. frozen between $200,000 and $300,000 in his account."

Kennard's Atlanta. attor-"We were trying to make ney, Mark Scott, said his preparations to build and client was simply over-

The Wilkerson, pastor of the 30member Church of Faith in Pace in Bolivar County, said his church paid $6,000 in Network to International, and was promised a $1 million grant. The congregation wanted to build a larger church.

The SEC has set up a hot line for investors, who are asked to leave details about their transactions before commission officials return the calls.

"The number of churches is growing. We are finding other churches that we may have not known had they not called the hot line," Parrish said. The SEC will soon get a call from Fields.

"I tell you one thing, we've learned a valuable lesson," Fields said. "The Bible says be anxious for nothing.

Newspapers In Education is a program in which newspapers supplement traditional teaching materials in the classroom. N.I.E. programs are provided to local schools through paid sponsor-has happened on Saturday,' Lambert said. "We then received a call from Ladner's mother, reported Ladner had shot the windows out of his own pickup on Saturday. As he was leaving, she told us, he said 'they would have to kill me before (someone else is killed).'

"The mother further advised that Ladner was on drugs and had not slept for several days and when he left, he had an assault weapon."

"Hancock Investigator John Luther, who is assisting in the investigation, discovered Ladner was a convicted felon in Louisiana and not registered in Hancock County. Because of the felony conviction should not have any weapons in his possession," added. Blaize-Watson contacted the LA Parole Department in Covington and they faxed over a warrant for Ladner's arrest for a parole violation. Meanwhile Luther found doned his truck and then took his wife's vehicle, The saga continued on Monday. Lambert said as, "Ladner's mother called again to report that she was in a safe location and had her two grandchildren. Her 10-year-old granddaughter told her that her father had been placing the rifle to his head and in his mouth threatening to commit suicide in front of her.

"Luther's investigation led to the place of employment of Ladner's wife in Gulfport. Gulfport Police was notified that Ladner possibly would be picking her up from work Monday evening. Ladner arrived and Gulfport Police apprehended him. In his possession he had a hand gun and ammunition for an assault weapon," Lambert added.

On Wednesday morning, Lambert reported Ladner was in Harrison County Jail awaiting extradition to Louisiana. He also said charges here are still pending, as the investigation continues.

Christmas decorations may have caused fire

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS Publisher Emeritus

An out-of-town Hancock County couple was notified Saturday morning that their mobile home burned in the early hours, according to Sheriff Steve Garber.

"The home owners, John (Bryan) and Leigh Ann Carroll, 12172 Caesar-Necaise Road, had been out of town since Friday around noon. Around 3 a.m. on Saturday, Mrs. Carroll's stepbrother, who resides next to their residence, saw flames coming from the rear of the home as he turned his dog out for a break. He first headed to the house and then realized no one was home and called 911,' Investigator Rita Blaize-Watson reported.

Watson said Mrs. Carroll was not sure as to whether she had unplugged the Christmas tree lights before they left the day before.

"Due to the burn pattern, it appeared that the fire might have started in the area where the Christmas tree had been located in the rear of the house," Watson's report states. Mrs. Carroll reported the home was four years old and had copper wiring and breakers instead of fuses, and the house was all electric.

May South expands services and staff

May South, a provider of community-based educational, rehabilitative, and behavioral healthcare services, is expanding its programs and increasing its staff to meet the growing needs of children and adolescents in Georgia, Florida, throughout Southeast.

When May South began serving children and adolescents with autism, mental retardation, developmental disabilities, and brain injury in 1999, most of the services were home-based," says Tony Broyles, vice president of operations for May South. "Since then, the demand for our services has increased dramatically - both in the home and in the schools."

To meet the increased need for services, James W. Moore, Ph.D., a native of Bay St. Louis, and Michael M. Mueller, Ph.D., have been hired to co-direct consultation services for May South.

In addition, Moore and Mueller, both residents of Atlanta, will serve as directors of May South's new for Applied Center Research.

Under the direction of Moore and Mueller, May South will also be introducing "Positive Schools" to the Southern states. A nationally-recognized behavior support program developed by the May Institute, Positive Schools is designed to provide training and consultation to educational staff on effective disciplinary practices and student social skill development.

(AP) _ A Hattiesburg businessman is leading a group of investors seeking state permission to open a new casino on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Ray Sims, owner of L&A Contracting Co., wants to build the Rock 'n' Roll Casino on Clay Point in east Biloxi. The $25 million riverboat would showcase vintage rock 'n' roll memorabilia and feature rockthemed shows.

Sims met last week with Gaming thestate Commission to discuss the project. He plans to go before the commission early next year to apply for the $5,000 gaming license needed to begin construction.

They are seeking site approval at this point," said Larry Gregory, the commis-

The Gulfport Rotary Club contributed more than $6,000 to the Mercy Ship program in 2002, part of the organization's ongoing commitment to the international medical outreach effort.

The Caribbean Mercy Ship announced recently that Gulfport would serve as its homeport, meaning it will visit the Coast annually to resupply for trips to Latin America.

So far, Rotary clubs along the Coast have contributed more than $10,000 to the Mercy Ship project. "We are very grateful for the new friends we have in Gulfport and Gulf Coast Rotary clubs," Snow said.

The proposed 25,000square-foot casino was described by Sims as a neighborhood casino and much smaller than the Gulf Coast's larger operations, like The Beau Rivage or The Grand Casino.

Its not a small deal, but its not a large deal," Sims said. It's more on the level of the Boomtown (casino). But it'll have a hotel."

All casinos operating in Mississippi must have a land-based structure that matches the casino in cost.

Sims said his market research revealed that there would a strong interest in a rock 'n' roll-themed casino and increased interest in the casinos in general as gaming revenues continue

Choose ornamental sweet potatoes in '03

GARDENING BY NORMAN WINTER MSU Horticulturist

Central Mississippi Research & Extension Center If you had told garden center managers in the early 1990s that they would be selling hundreds of sweet potatoes for the landscape each year, they probably would have laughed hysterically. Now they are laughing all the way to the bank as the ornamental sweet potato has become a huge success story in just a few short years.

Sweet potato vines bring color and pizzazz to the landscape the entire growing season, and cover space almost as quickly as kudzu. Other than an insect or two, the ornamental sweet potato is foolproof.

If you still haven't tried ornamental sweet potatoes in the landscape, make 2003 the year you do. Select a site in full sun, although a little afternoon shade is quite acceptable. A farmer will tell you the sweet potato likes fertile, well-drained soil, and that's true in the landscape, too. This usually means amending with 3 to 4 inches of organic matter.

Incorporate two pounds of a slow-release, 12-6-6fertilizer per 100 square feet of bed space while preparing the bed. Plant nursery-grown transplants at the same depth they are growing in the container, spacing 24 to 48 inches apart, depending on variety.

Give supplemental water during the long growing season. Flea beetles are known to occasionally make them unsightly, so treat with a recommended insecticide at the first sign of damage. Prune as needed to keep sweet potato vines contained in their allotted space.

Since winter has settled in, I want to get you stirred up a bit for the spring by telling you about some of the new ornamental sweet potatoes coming next season. The hottest ornamental potatoes are known as the Sweet Caroline series. They are coming courtesy of the J.C. Raulston Arboretum in North Carolina, one of the most highly rated trial programs in the country. Though the potatoes are from the arboretum, they are being marketed through Paul Michells, a partner with Bodger Botancials. There are four colors in the Sweet Caroline series: green, bright lime green. purple (actually a dark burgundy) and a bronze that has everyone talking. The bronze can best be described as rust. All of the series has deeply toothed leaves similar to the ever popular Blackie. In addition to the Sweet Caroline series, look for Blackie, which is purple with deep lobes; Black Heart, which is also purple but with heart-shaped leaves; Margarita, with lime green and heartshaped leaves; and Pink Frost, which is not as vigorous, but it is still outstanding with three-lobed leaves in variegated pink, green and white.

The ornamental sweet potato is the best annual groundcover today. The different colors intermingle for an effective display. They are unbeatable for cascading over walls and are easily capable of hanging down eight to 10 feet, if needed. Grow them in

The world discovered America in 1972, when a nameless horse began its gallop across the international airwaves. "A Horse With No Name" made the band called America famous in the United States, Europe and beyond, leading the way for an impressive string of hits to follow, including "Tin Man," and "Sister Golden Hair.'

Slightly more than a year after launching their group, America, consisting then of members Gerry Beckley, Dewey Bunnell and Dan Peek, was riding high thanks to a sound that mixed rock, pop and folk elements to

Rocks sink Admirals, take Holiday Classic title

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II

Staff Writer The twelth ranked St. Stanislaus Rock-a-chaws, 17-1, avenged their only loss of the season on Saturday, December 28, when they upended the seventh ranked Gulfport Admirals 50-39 at the Bert Jenkins Gymnasium for the championship of the 20th annual Admiral Hardwood Club Holiday Classic.

)5

The win in the title game marked the second consecutive night that the Rocks knocked off a top ten team. On Friday, December 27, the Rocks stopped the fifth ranked Mendenhall Tigers 68-53.

SSC used a lack of respect as motivation for the tournament title. The Rocks' only loss of the season was a nine-point decision to Gulfport early in the schedule. Since then the Rocks have ripped off 13 straight wins. Ironically, during that time span the Rocks have remained twelth in the state and dropped from third to fifth in the South Mississippi poll.

SSC head coach Jay Ladner commented, "We are very pleased with the win. Anytime you can beat a program like Gulfport, it is a very gratifying accomplishment. I thought our players responded to the challenge presented to them. They played a hard-nosed game against a great opponent in the Admirals. Many people around may have thought that reaching the state semi-finals last season was to earn some respect. We but we are not satisfied. There is still room for much improvement."

Gulfport jumped out on the Rocks 7-2 early in the first period behind the hot hands of junior phenom Henry Salter. However, Darius Acker's three-pointer with :19 left in the opening period put the Rocks ahead 11-10. It was a lead that SSC would not relinguish.

Mario Faranda keyed a 7-2 run by the Rocks to start the second period. Faranda scored all seven points in Mario Faranda that disthe streak.

Acker scored six points in the period and Faranda eight points as the Rocks extended their lead at halftime to 25-19.

Brett Amond and Sam Tart got in on the action in the third period for the Rocks. Acker and Faranda also scored in the period with Faranda getting a flush with 6:03 remaining in the period. But, Rob Murray put the punctuation on the period for SSC nailing a trey with :01 left to put SSC up 39-29.

SSC started the fourth period with a 6-0 run highlighted by Murray's two baskets as the Rocks got up on the Admirals 45-29 with 5:09 left to play. Admirals made a little run behind Nigel Jordan's five straight points but it wasn't enough to overcome the SSC lead. Gabe Willis nailed a from the Rock faithful. Ben Benvenutti made the final a fluke. We are still trying score 50-39 with a layup with:04 left after the Rocks are very happy with the win played keep-away with the Admirals for the final three minutes.

Acker led SSC with 14 points followed by Faranda with 12 points. Gabe Willis and Rob Murray dished out six and four assists, respectively. Henry Salter led Gulfport with 18 points followed by teammate Nigel Jordan with 11 points.

Willis, Acker, Faranda all made the All-Tournament team along with Jordan and Salter from Gulfport.

The night before it was mantled the fifth ranked Mendenhall Tigers as the Rocks cruised into the tourney finals with a 68-53 win. SSC held Tiger All-Stater Emmanuel Willis to 15 points en route to the win. Willis was a USM signee in the early signing period back in November.

The Rocks and the Tigers battled in the first half with SSC claiming a 14-13 lead at the end of the first period and a 25-23 lead at halftime. In the third period, the Rocks nailed five threepointers. The long-range bombing allowed the Rocks to claim a 50-35 advantage heading into the final 8 minutes of play. Acker nailed three bombs in the period while Murray and Ben Benvenutti each had one. None of the five downtown shots were as exciting as the one that ended the period. Benvenutti had the three-pointer with 3:00 left ball as time was ticking that drew cheers of victory away. The 6-6 senior post player launched his shot which banked off the backboard at the buzzer.

The fourth period was Sunday's edition.

touch-and-go for SSC as they lost three players to fouls and had one playing with four fouls. In the perithe Rocks lost Benvenutti, Brett Amond and Rob Murray to foul trouble while Faranda finished the game with four.

Acker, Faranda, and Gabe Willis helped clean up the Tigers in the fourth period as the Rocks and Mendenhall went basket for basket scoring 18 points

Faranda and Acker each scored 22 points in the game but Faranda was a monster on the boards pulling down 11 rebounds. Gabe Willis added 12 points and six steals in the game. Rob Murray tallied six assists in the win. Acker nailed six three-pointers during the game for SSC.

On Thursday, December SSCdefeated Pascagoula 65-49 to start their romp in the Admiral Hardwood Classic. Gabe Willis scored 23 points followed by Acker with 16 points and Faranda with 12 points. The top ranked Bay High Lady Tigers won their Christmas Classic on Saturday, December 28 with a resounding 89-66 win over Covington High School of Louisiana. Carmen Labat exploded for 30 points as Bay High remained undefeated at 19-0 on the season.

Stephanie Reed scored 28 points and dished out 8 assists while her sister, Kendra, scored 19 points and grabbed 12 rebounds for the Lady Tigers.

Web site serves as one-stop shop, road map for the best golf in Mississippi

Fourteen premier golf incentives to play our outcourses. Two hundred and sixty-one holes of golf. Fiftyfive miles of fairways. Hundreds of dollars in greens fee savings. One membership.

The newly announced Magnolia Golf Trail (MGT) designed to put Mississippi on the map as a golfing destination while providing golf enthusiasts Financial savings.

Golf Digest, Golf Week and Golf magazines have listed MGT courses as some of the best in the South. The accolades are no surprise considering they have hosted PGA, USGA and Buy.com Tour events.

"Mississippi is an undiscovered jewel for golf, and our courses are the caliber you would expect to find only in Florida or Elton Head, S.C.," said Scott Kelly, co-manager Magnolia Golf Trail.

Too many tourists are driving through our state en route to golf games in other states. This is a collaborative effort to educate, golfers on what they are missing here, and offer Month, which includes standing courses. We think this will raise the bar for golf in Mississippi, and provide a boost to both the golfing, and tourism indus-

The courses are geographically located from Robinsonville, in the Tunica gaming hub just outside Memphis, to Bay St. Louis, offering a scenic look at the Gulf of Mexico. This should appeal to Mississippi golfers, who will find themselves within driving distance of several MGT courses. Each MGT course had to meet well-defined criteria guaranteeing quality, high standard of course layout and amenities. Architects of these layouts include such well-known names as Arnold Palmer, Mark McCumber and Jerry Pate.

Additional information on the MGT can be found at its Web site, www.magnoliagolftrail.com including a trail map as well as profiles and color photos of all member courses.

A rotating feature on the site will be a Hole of the detailed description of the layout and a "How to Play The Hole" explanation. The current Hole of the Month is the number 9, par 4 at The Bridges in Bay St. Louis.

"In Mississippi, every course has worked independently to establish its own reputation," said Ron Hickman, general manager of Timberton Golf Club in Hattiesburg.

"Each course historically has offered many different pricing plans. This should be reassuring to folks, they are going to got the beat possible rates without having to barter and negotiate."

The $49.95 membership fee for individuals includes one-half off an introductory round at the MGT course of choice, and ongoing preferred MGT discounted green fees ranging between 20 percent and 40 percent.

Members will also receive the Magnolia Golf Trail Magazine as well as merchandise discounts at select MGT clubs.

Plans are to expand the roster of MGT courses in 2003 and cap the number of courses at 20, conditional an their passing the selection

"We plan to include the best that Mississippi can offer, and assure members there will be variety, playability and affordability," said Kelly.
